Research in Copenhagen will generally involve two types of people:

- People from peasant families who moved to Copenhagen during the second half of the 1800s to find work.
- People who resided in Copenhagen before the Industrial Revolution, primarily those who were merchants or carried on a trade.

Although it may be seeming overwhelming to do research in Copenhagen, there are some valuable resources to simplify the research. The primary sources for research in Copenhagen are discussed below.

Church Records. If you don't know where the family resided, you will need to search each parish. Before 1861 the following parishes should be consulted:

1. Vor Frue
2. Sankt Nikolaj
3. Helligånds
4. Trinitatis
5. Holmens
6. Vor Frelser
7. Garnison

For the period 1861-1890 in addition to the above parishes, check the following:

1. Sankt Paul
2. Sankt Johannes
3. Sankt Stefan
4. Sankt Jakob

Many of the church records for Copenhagen have been extracted and the entries are available on FamilySearch. Many indexes to the church records of Copenhagen are available at the Family History Library. Family History Library has marriage indexes for the main parishes in Copenhagen for the period 1814-1891.

5. Court Records (tingbøger), ca. 1730-1927. Register of real estates, houses and lots of Copenhagen City, giving an abstract of the deeds with references to the mortgage books by number and page.

Occupational Records. The Family History Library has the following records:

1. Citizenship Records (borgerskaber), 1683-1865. Contains city council records, citizenship records and trade licenses for Copenhagen City. These contain a wealth of genealogical information, especially the enclosures (bilag) relating to obtaining citizenship and receiving a license to follow a trade.
2. Business Licenses (næringsbevillinger), 1779-1857.
3. Various guild and apprentice records for the following occupations: tinsmiths, coopers, grocers, hatters, merchants, hardware dealers, coppersmiths, brokers, university professors and teachers, saddlers, skippers, shoemakers, blacksmiths, tobacco spinners, carpenters, bakers, and harbor masters.

Probate Records. The following jurisdictions existed for Copenhagen:

Before 1771 there were 10 different probate jurisdictions:

1. Byretten (city court)—common citizens.
2. Hofretten (royal court)—higher civil servants.
3. Borgretten (civil court)—lower civil servants.
4. Universitetets (university)—professors, students, and others with university connections.
5. Gejstlige (ecclesiastical)—members of the clergy.
6. Militære (military)—military and naval persons

7. Frederiks Hospital—hospital officials
8. Vajsenhusets (orphanage)—orphanage officials
9. Asiatiske og Vestindisk-Guineiske Kompagnis (Asiatic and West Indies-Guinea Company)—officials of the company
10. Jødernes (Jewish)—officials, teachers and members of the Jewish faith

After 1771 probates in Copenhagen were discharged by the Skiftekommission (probate commission) and were divided into 9 classes as follows:

1. Higher civil servants and commissioned officers.
2. Other civil servants, royal theater personnel, secretaries, bookkeepers, clerks.
3. Clergy, professors, students and those working for schools, hospitals, and the church.
4. Citizens of high repute and wealthy merchants.
5. Artisans, tradesmen, journeymen, apprentices
6. Persons of no means
7. Servants
8. Enlisted men of the navy and merchant marines
9. Enlisted men of the army

The indexes after 1798 reference the social class by number, volume, and page.

The number of social classes beginning in 1860 was 6. Persons in class 3 (clergy, etc.) were combined with class 2 (lower civil servants, etc.); Classes 7 (servants) and 8 (enlisted men in the navy and merchant marines), and 9 (enlisted men in the army), were combined in Class 3.

These records are available on microfilm at the Family History Library, online at Family Search and Arkivalieronline.
